

Figure 3: Cross-section A-B (see Figure 1 for location) showing the major geologic structures in the Cumberland Plateau. The blue line shows the base of the Pottsville Formation, the most resistant rock in the area. The blue and red broken lines show the approximate location of the Pottsville and the thrust faults before erosion has reduced the surface to the black solid line.